

EMPLOYABILITY SKILLS

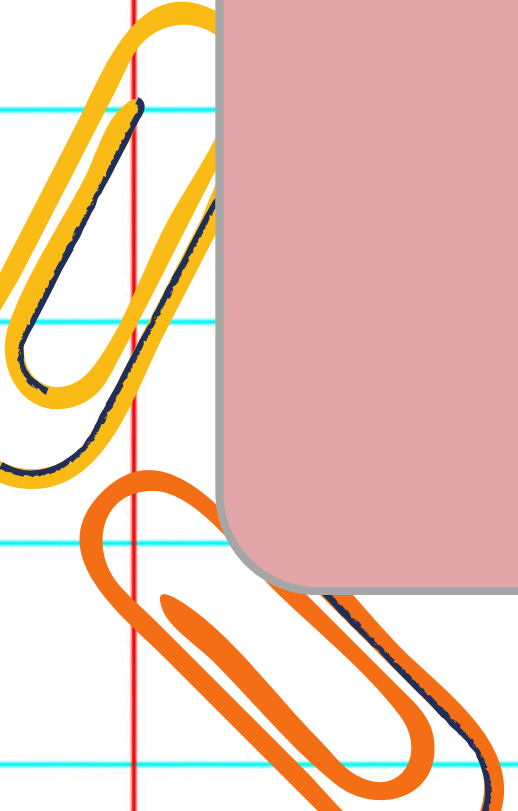

Jacob Korir

Course Outline

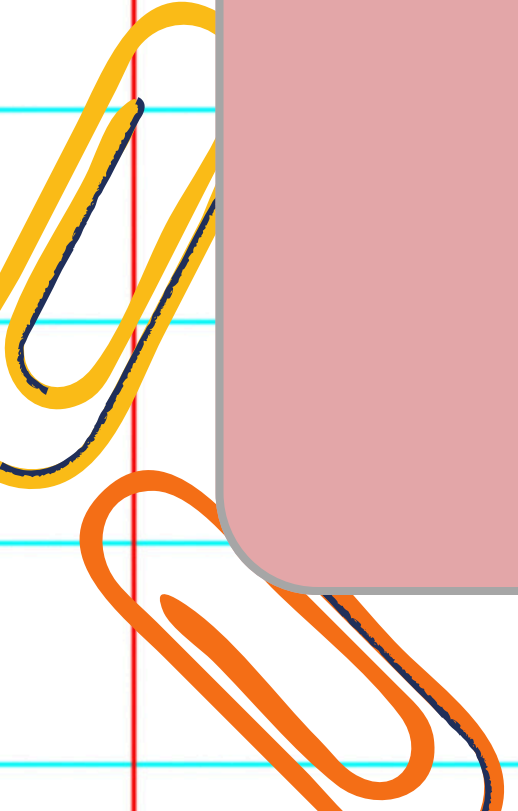

- Self Management
 - Critical Safe Work Habits
 - Workplace Learning
 - Workplace Ethics
-

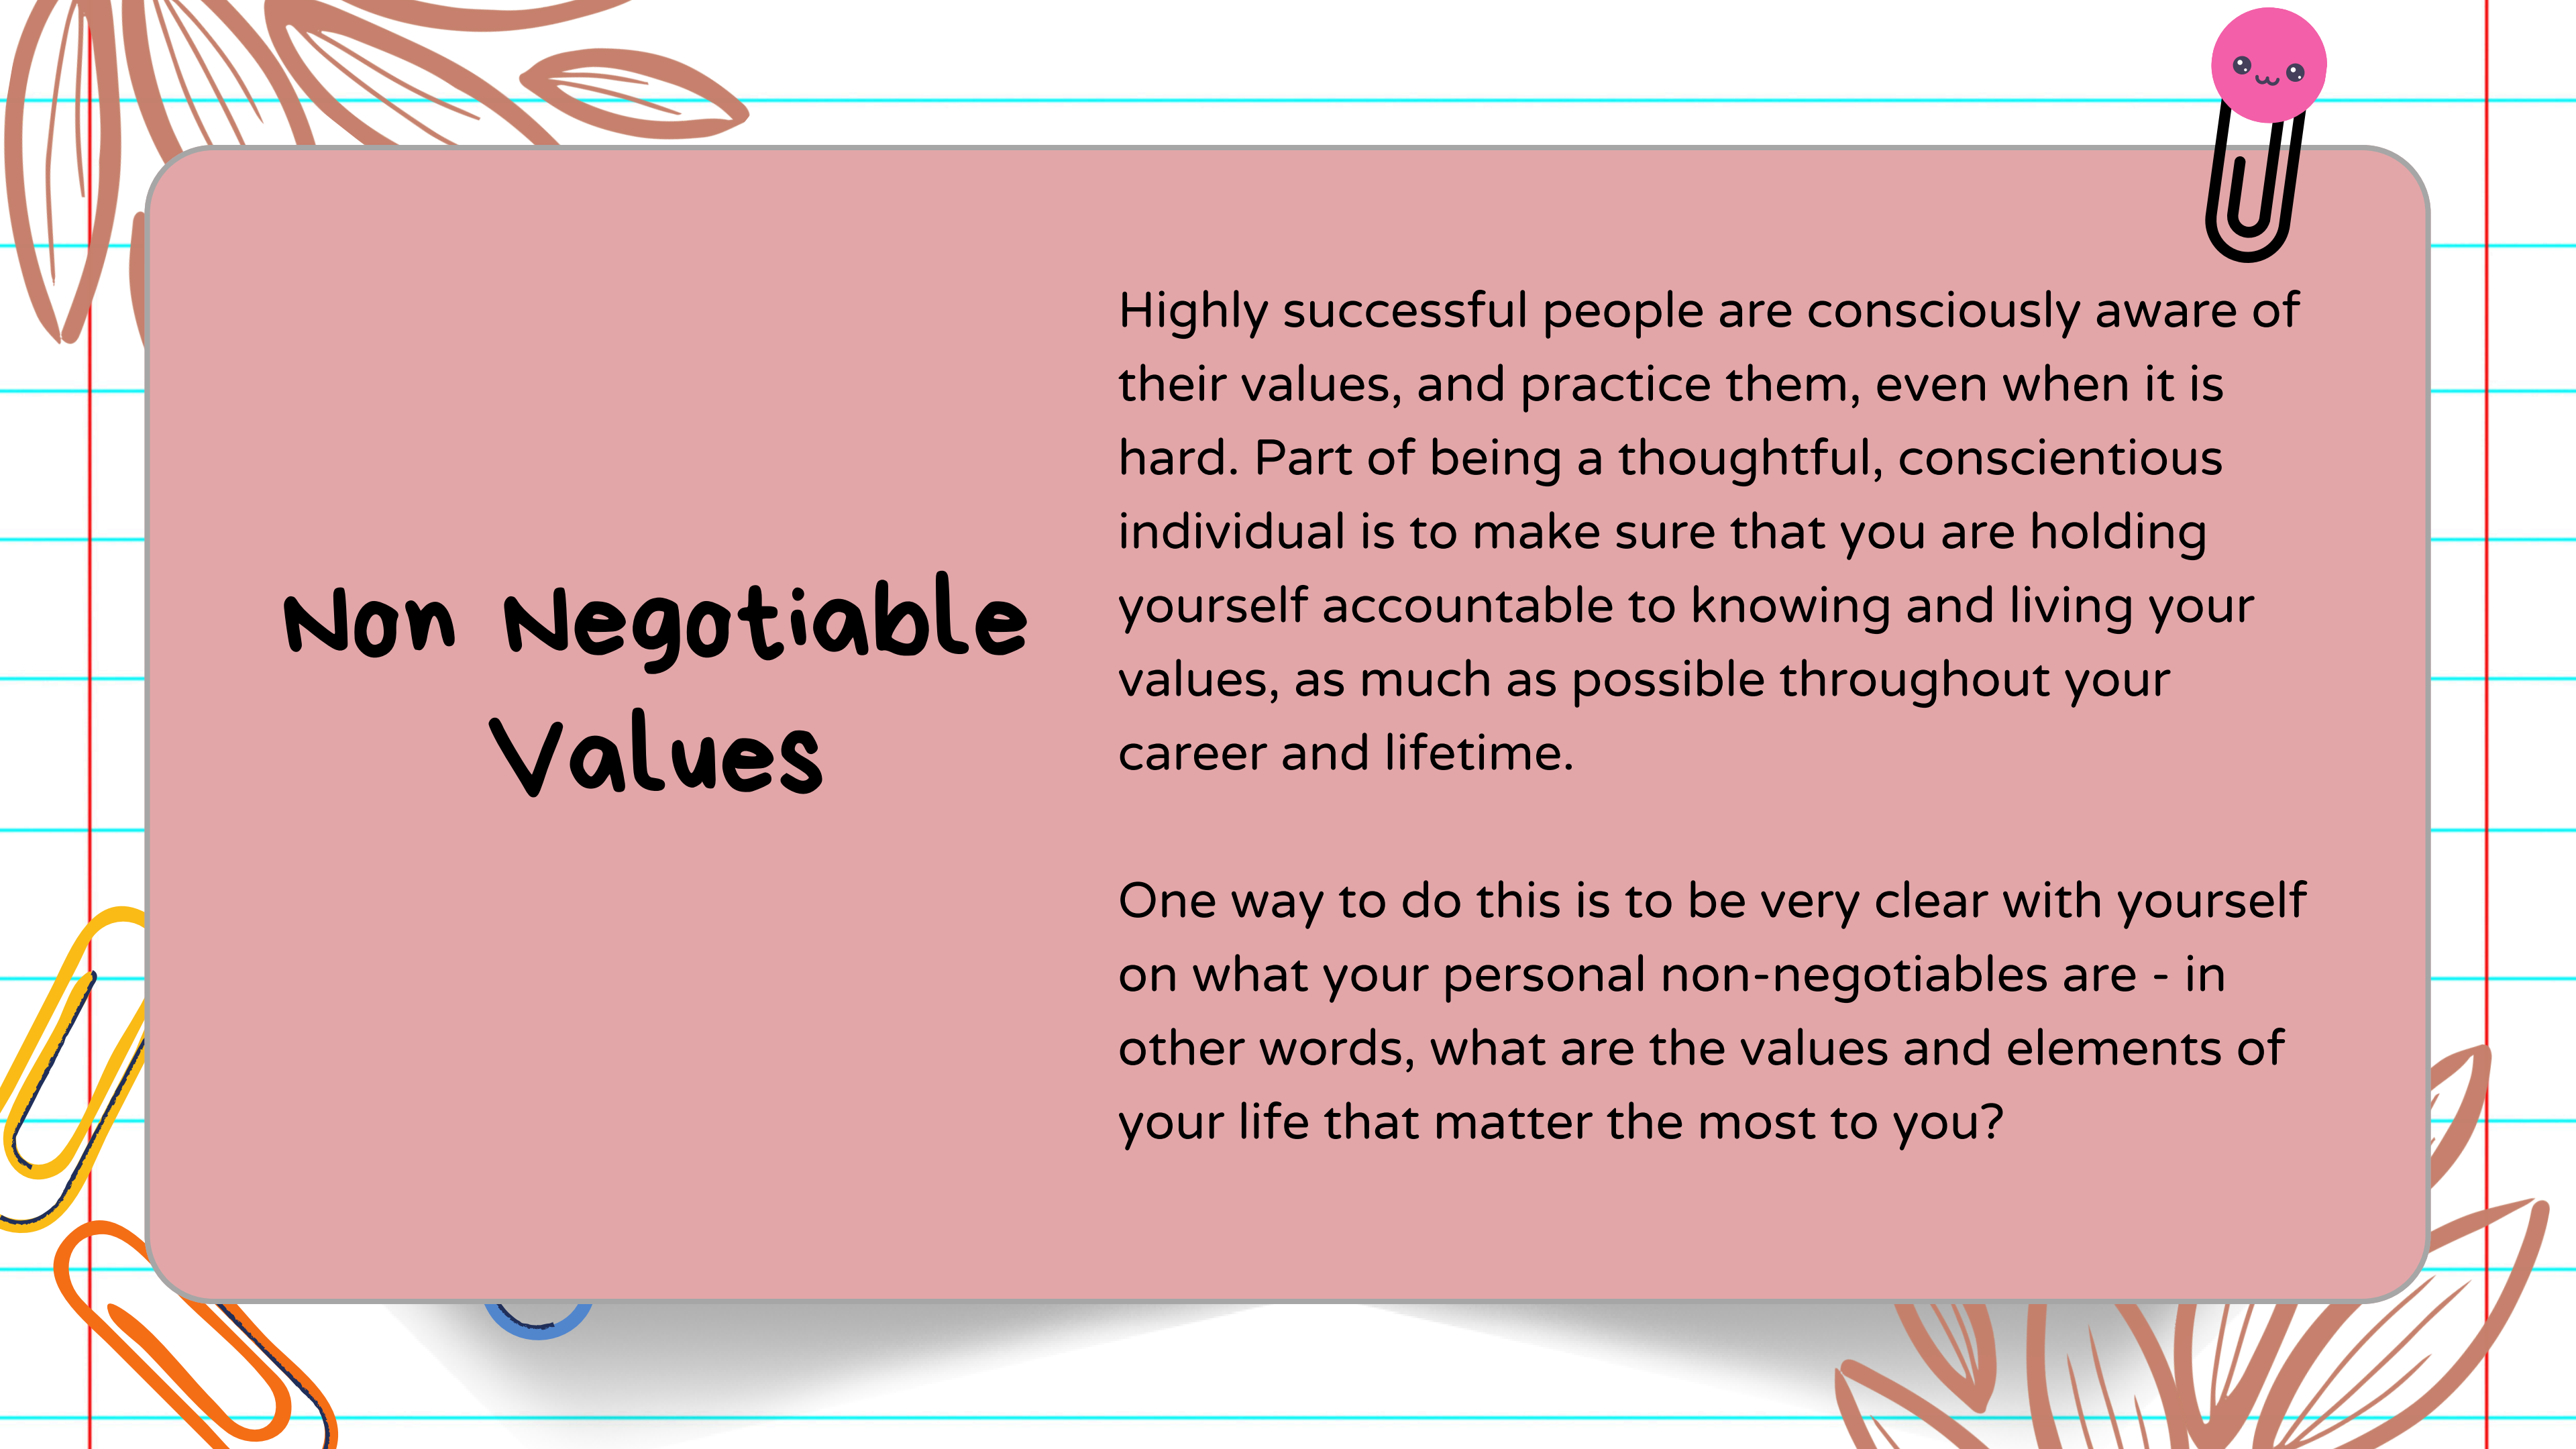

Core Values

Core values are the fundamental beliefs, principles, or standards that guide an individual, organization, or group in making decisions, setting goals, and interacting with others.

Core values provide a guide to decision-making since they define what is right and what is wrong. For individuals, this might mean choosing integrity over short-term gain

Non Negotiable Values

Highly successful people are consciously aware of their values, and practice them, even when it is hard. Part of being a thoughtful, conscientious individual is to make sure that you are holding yourself accountable to knowing and living your values, as much as possible throughout your career and lifetime.

One way to do this is to be very clear with yourself on what your personal non-negotiables are - in other words, what are the values and elements of your life that matter the most to you?

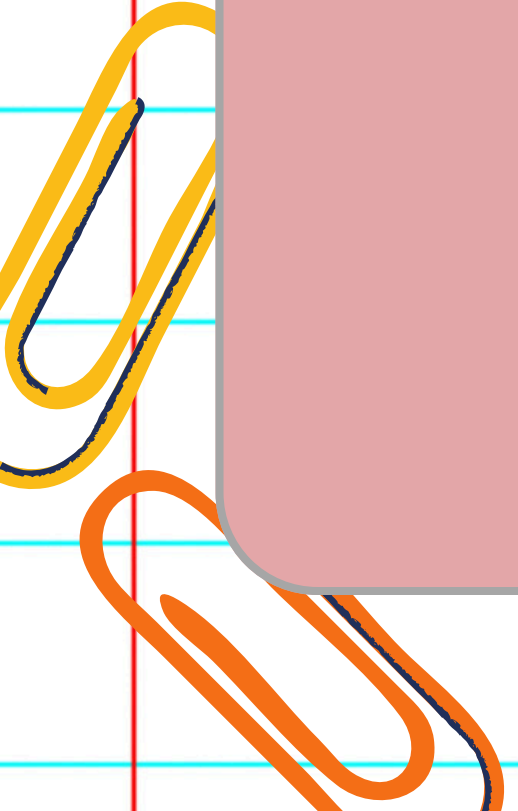

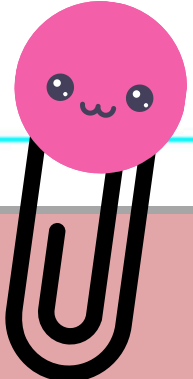

Rock, Pebble & Sand

<https://youtu.be/cPgMeKfQFq8>

We are always bombarded with different things competing for our attention. This video will help us understand how to determine the “rocks, pebbles and sand” we are confronted with daily and how to manage them.

Answer the following questions:

- What is your rock?
 - What is your pebble?
 - What is your sand?
-

Self Awareness vs Self Regulation

- Self Awareness

It's your ability to notice your feelings, your physical sensations, your reactions, your habits, your behaviors, and your thoughts

- Self Regulation

Self-regulation is being aware of the impact of your behavior and making adjustments, often for the betterment of a situation.

Emotional Intelligence

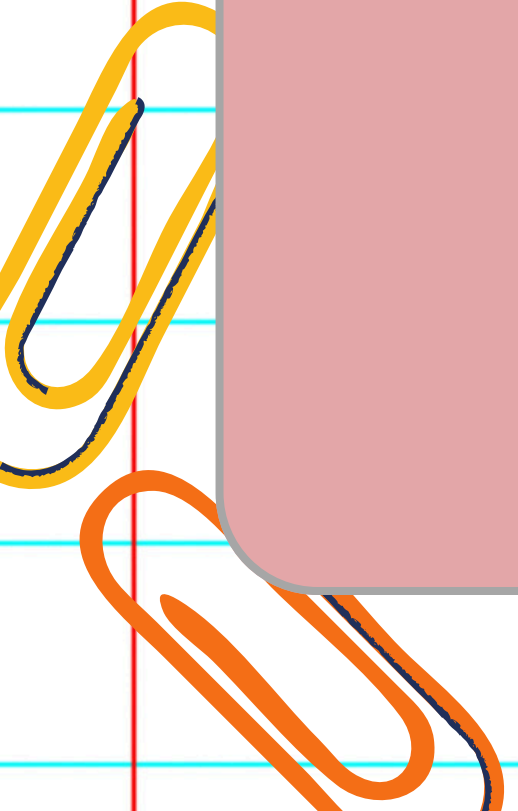

Emotional intelligence refers to the ability to identify and manage one's own emotions, as well as the emotions of others.

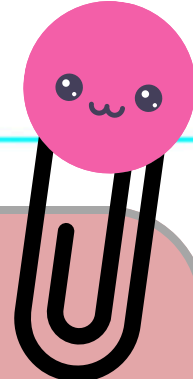

Emotional intelligence is generally said to include a few skills: namely, emotional awareness, or the ability to identify and name one's own emotions; the ability to harness those emotions and apply them to tasks like thinking and problem solving; and the ability to manage emotions, which includes both regulating one's own emotions when necessary and helping others to do the same.

R.U.L.E.R. Framework

- Recognize: What is your current emotional state at the moment?
 - Understand: What triggered this emotion? Why might I be feeling this way?
 - Label: What would you call this feeling you experienced?
 - Express: How would you explain what just happened to someone else?
 - Regulate: What might you be able to do to help you manage this feeling/emotion?
-

Empathy

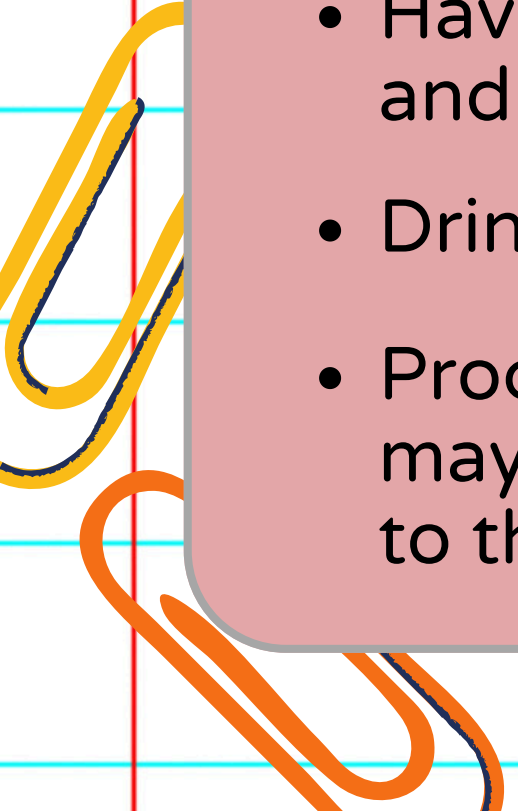

Empathy is the ability to understand and relate to the feelings of others. This makes it a crucial skill to be used in building meaningful connections with colleagues you're going to work with

By practicing empathy, you can collaborate effectively with colleagues, consider ethical implications, and give, and receive feedback constructively.

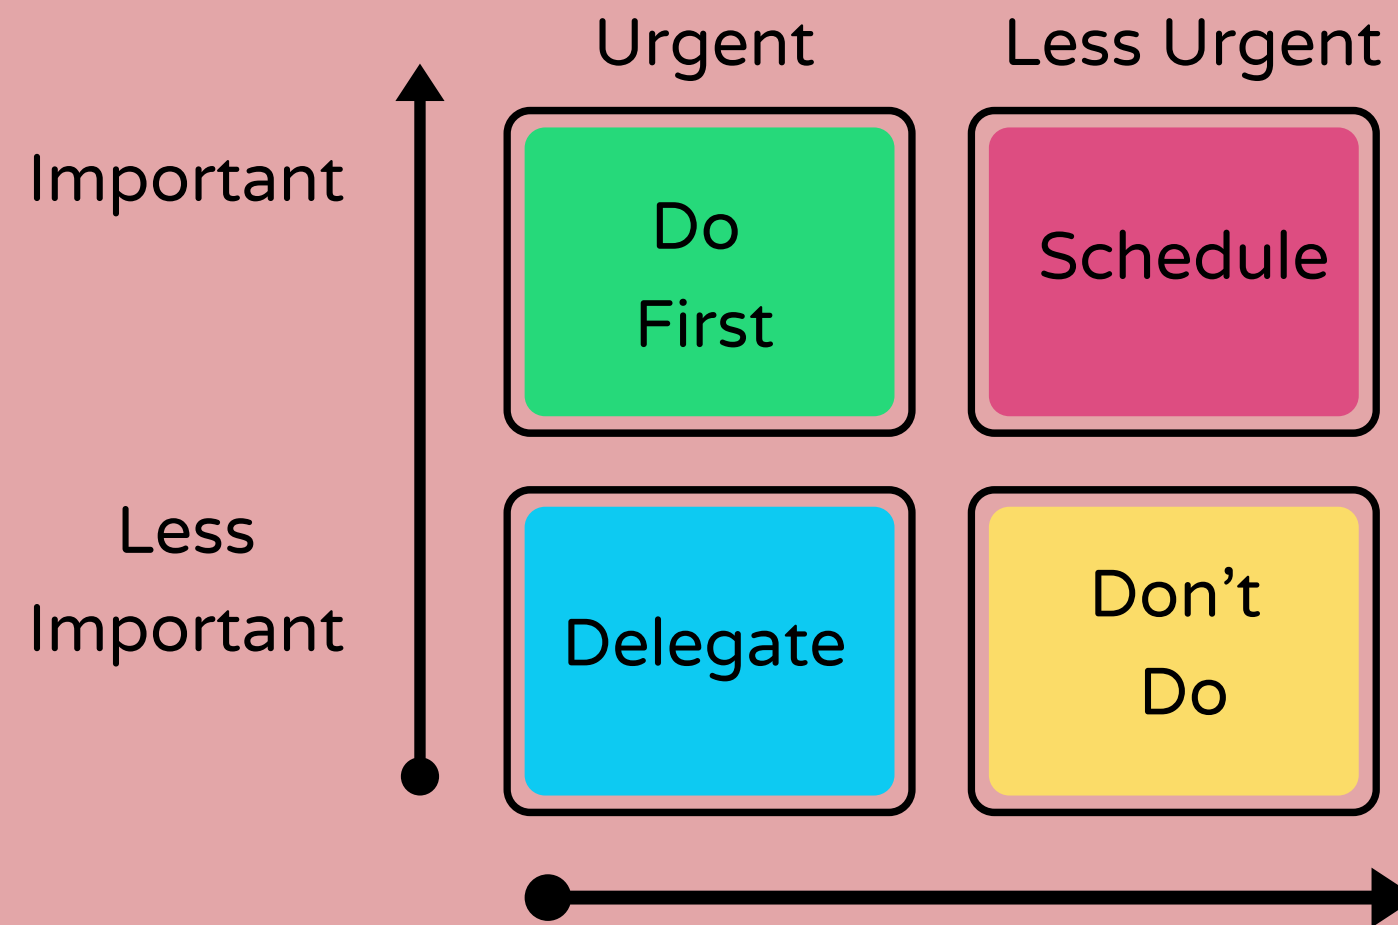

Workplace Safety Tips Every Employee Should Know

- Proper use of tools and machinery can prevent injuries. Only operate machines you're trained or certified to use and ensure they are cleaned and maintained regularly.
 - Always wear the necessary safety equipment. The proper safety gear in your workplace could be reflective gear, fire-retardant clothing, industrial workwear or something as simple as nonslip shoes.
 - Having a clean workspace will positively impact your job satisfaction and help keep you and your coworkers safer
 - Drink enough water to remain alert and avoid dehydration
 - Procedures exist to keep workers safe. Though skipping a step or not wearing safety gear may save you time, it isn't worth the risk of injury. Use every tool and machine according to the instructions.
-

Eisenhower Matrix

The Eisenhower Matrix is a common tool to prioritize tasks in order of importance and urgency. You can use it to plan your activities during a specific time slot, day or week.

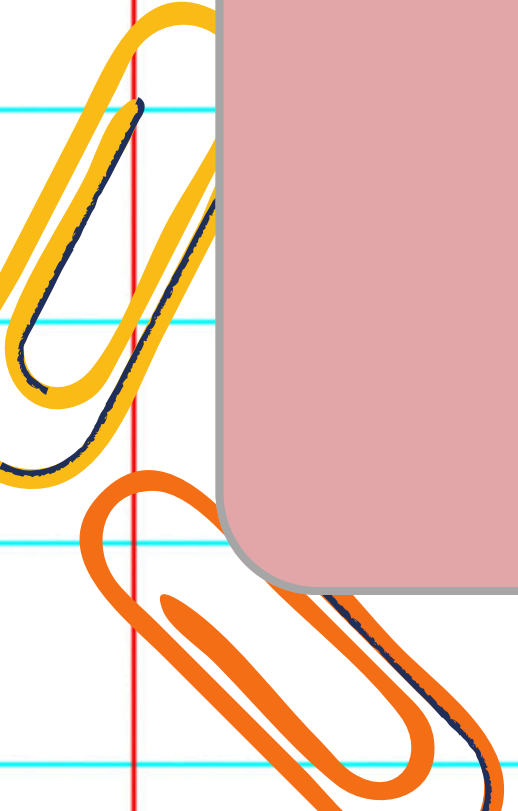

Fixed Mindset vs Growth Mindset

- When people believe that they cannot change their intelligence through effort (a belief known as a “fixed mindset”) they have much poorer outcomes in many areas of life

- When people understand that intelligence, talent, and skill can all be improved through effort, this is called a “growth mindset”.

Reference

- What is self awareness: <https://www.lifeskillsthatmatter.com/blog/self-awareness>
 - What is self regulation: <https://positivepsychology.com/self-regulation/>
 - Emotional Intelligence:
<https://www.psychologytoday.com/us/basics/emotional-intelligence>
 - Workplace Safety Tips For Every Employee:
<https://www.indeed.com/career-advice/career-development/workplace-safety-tips>
-

THANK YOU

